The Sailing Mirrors of Creation

Remembering who we are and where we came from

Adel E. Hammad, Ph. D.

And Those examples do we present to mankind, but none will understand them save those with knowledge (Q 29:43).

And so We propound these parables (allegories) unto man: but none can grasp their innermost meaning save those who are aware i.e. the God-conscious, who believe in [the existence of] a reality which is beyond the reach of human perception.

1. The Cottage Book

The great, perfect, majestic, glorious and most compassionate King of the unbounded greatest Kingdom is raising his little Princess whose infinite beauty and purity are unmatched as if a small goddess. She is yet 6 and is engulfed by the King's joyful presence, light, Grace and unlimited love that surround and fill her entire life. The palace has countless halls and rooms but no walls or pillars can be seen inside, neither a ceiling. It is made of heavenly light and always flourishing with life. Even when the Princess strolls with serenity in the lush gardens surrounding their magnificent palace she feels the unending full peaceful and loving presence of the King. Although His radiant face is central of everything, but is simultaneously everywhere she looks and never disappears for a blink of eye, sometimes she thinks deeply inside her heart about His in and out mysterious ways and her thoughts diminishes in a deep endless silence accompanied by a bottomless joyful breath. In fact she breathes it since her coming into existence and cannot miss it even for an instant.

"The human soul is to God is as the flower to the sun; it opens at its approach, and shuts when it withdraws. —BENJAMIN WHICHCOTE"

— Mark Nepo, The Book of Awakening: Having the Life You Want by Being Present to the Life You Have

Neb is an Ancient Egyptian term meaning gold (traditionally, the finished perfected end product, the goal of the alchemist), Lord, master.(Mostafa Gadalla-The Ancient Egyptian ..)

The gardens are infinite and full of various happy and satisfied dwellers together with wide smiling noble servants in their white garments but no one can notice them in the dominant lights that permeates the whole place. They continuously and quietly follow and surround everyone, particularly the Princess.

The day she became 7, she could not tell what happened to the Palace ceiling that morning but she spotted a small golden cottage on a lush green hill outside. For the first time, she became curious and ran towards it. The cottage looked like an open book surrounded by unseen guards. She knows that thick golden book and is familiar with its special articulated cover. All new entrants to the palace looked meticulously through its pages and almost immersed in it. When she approached the cottage she thought loudly if it is really a book in the form of Hu!. The thought stopped suddenly as she pushed the gate open and, again for the first time, she became excited. Wow!, what a magnificent magic place, she thought. Startling lights are blinking in the dark roof and in a moment she almost forgot the wonderful blue skies and its beautiful soft and shiny inhabitants who greeted her gently with their soft music and colored songs every morning in her life. She never noticed the noble servants and the newly arrived guards who will always surround her.

When the excitement subsided, she once more, for first time, felt alone and scared. Immediately, she thought of the King and his presence and her breath. Suddenly, something like a mirror (maybe a 3-D laser screen) appeared in front of her. In the first glance, she saw herself then heard the Kings' calming words conveyed to her while gradually the mirror image started to alter the form and reveal a beautiful little prince. She forgot her anxiety and became eager to touch him. First she touched the screen, nothing happened. She thought of the King and asked her wish. A blue-colored small button appeared beside the screen, she looked at the button while the King's word coming through the Prince image asking her to push it and simultaneously touching and virtually hugging the 3-D hologram image form. In no time, with a gust of wind and a flash of heavenly light,(which may be called a Spark of the Divine), the Prince was standing in front of her and when she realized he was already sitting besides her holding her hands. What a feeling! She started breathing again and the peaceful surroundings felt somewhat like the joyful presence of the King.

"Breathe like a fallen leaf and think of nothing. Just breathe and let your heart and mind be carried, however briefly, by the spirit you can't quite see."

— Mark Nepo, The Book of Awakening: Having the Life You Want by Being Present to the Life You Have

The Princess/Prince pair communicated endlessly and experienced the calm and lovely companionship. She experienced HAPPINESS. She noticed that the surroundings are becoming larger and larger and looked almost like the one she used to live in with the King. There is no cottage memory any more. The beautiful pair spent TIME over TIME, in the unending NOW, playing and enjoying the ever expanding SPACE. More and more beautiful playful beings appeared, entertained and joined them. They both LAUGHED together as they noticed that everything is dual and all creatures are in pairs. They also talked endlessly about the King whom they could feel and see in every moment and every thing they felt, saw, heard, touched and experienced. Many times they thought, felt and talked to Him so closely as if He lives in the depth of their hearts and flows in their minds.

The now bonded Princess/Prince pair started to explore the ever expanding space with multitude of worlds and creations. Then one day, they asked themselves; are WE alone? They remembered the mirror! They hurried back to fetch the mirror which has now become a dual large hologram screen mirrors (multi-dimensional), each with a blue button that appeared larger than the original one. Without hesitation, they pushed their respective buttons, while focusing on one dimension of the screens and immediately (following the divinely spark) appeared a female/male real, living and conscious pair of their likings whom they felt very familiar since they were almost identical to them as if they are from the same family. They became excited, and each started thinking of a new variation of the created male/female pairs by focusing on another mirror dimension. To their surprise, each individual creation came with its own screen-mirror. The new multi-dimensional mirrors are different from the original ones as they have a larger panel, provided with a large screen showing geographical maps with zoom functions and space/time and frequency dials. The buttons are replaced with a keyboard but the place of the blue button is now occupied with two buttons; a green one and a red one. Above each individual creature hovered a transparent covering that was recording every movement and thought of the individual and looked like a shiny solar cell. None of the creatures noticed that sheltering since everyone was focusing on own screen and busy tuning and programming his/her own gadgets to his/her own liking and all pairs seemed to know what they are doing. Despite the virtual physical separation of the newly created pairs, each pair stared passionately at each other and kept a continuous communication, unaware of the servants surrounding and the recording guards above them. Amazingly every pair behaved and looked absolutely unique but all of them have three common aspects: awareness of being, consciousness and bliss. These aspects are absolute and require no object but are inseparable in the same way that wetness, transparency and liquidity are inseparable properties of water.

(Be as you are – The teachings of sri Ramana Maharishi)

The Princess/Prince pair (now we can call them the Noble Pair as their feelings, thoughts and emotions are completely bonded) became very happy watching the scenery of the multiple new pairs in their tandem movements. These movements resemble but are different than the dances of the other beings. What made the Noble Pair much happier is that they could share their harmonious and tender feelings and joys as if they are their own. The bond they felt towards the newly created pairs was very much similar to what they have between the two of them and they realized the nature and similarity of that feeling when they thought of the King. It is a deep and a harmonious composite of unconditional unidirectional love, grace and mercy. It wraps everything in a warm blanket of infinite safety, satisfaction, gratification, contentment..

This is LOVE, they whispered and everyone is breathing freely.

This love which had been awakened was the kind which totally transcended the whole environment and created an awareness of a different kind of consciousness which can only be described as a mindless rapture, pure joy with no boundaries. A truly Divine Supreme Consciousness. (Proof of Heaven – Chapter 9)

The created pairs (now we can call them the Nafs-Pairs) started moving in different directions as if exploring the endless world they just realized. The noble pair joined them, by sharing their feelings, emotions and thoughts and following their movements on the screens as they emitted their very shiny light spots. When they were scattered enough, the noble pair thought and wished to have more and started pushing the buttons for new Nafs-Pair productions. They kept repeating this action whenever they felt wanting it. Thus, wave after wave of newly produced unique Nafs-Pairs are floating, sailing and dispersing but never separated from the Princess. They were in the millions, then in billions and finally are 37+ trillions and they are indeed the noble pair's own extensions. The Princess felt them as her own individual body cells or in other words they all are the same being only multiplied in number. She deeply sensed the harmony and peace that is generated by her feelings of oneness with every one and was overwhelmed that she occupies the entire existence. Watching in amazement, the noble pair noticed that each Nafs-Pair emits a unique color (at a certain frequency-component) and the spectrum of all color rays incredibly reflected the (white) light that fills and penetrates the whole that is.(The Biology of Belief, Bruce H. Lipton.)

The whole realm was like a giant cosmic womb (OM-or mother in Arabic) wherein all moved in stillness and separated in Oneness.

2. The Two Heavens

The Noble Pair kept busy tracking the Nafs-Pairs with curiosity and passion as they invented new patterns of movements. After a while, they noticed them grouping and making different formations in the now infinite marvelous world. Together with the other creations, particularly birds, trees, flowers, butterflies and endless lush landscapes with gently and lively flowing rivers and endless skies with beautiful plants and twinkling stars, the perfection of the whole scenery is completing while the servants are now shining with their forms, movements and very smooth, almost silent, singings with beautiful music and melodies in the background. It is LIFE and LOVE, the noble pair felt and they breathed deeply seeing the King's presence encompassing everything and feeling the totality of the totality and they are everything and everywhere although they never left their seat.

Not far from them they saw a gigantic crystal house in the shape of a towering pyramid. Each side of the pyramid has its own background color. One of them is red-colored ruby, the other is green chrysolite, one is white silver and the other is from red gold. Despite the differences of the house sides, they all blended together in harmony and the whole structure melt in the surrounding landscape. Keen workers enter the Palace in successive waves or groups each maybe of seventy thousand of them and they disappear mysteriously inside the house. The sight of the house reminded the Princess of her palace.

From a distance the noble pair noticed a place of clouds. Big, puffy, pink-white ones that showed up sharply against the deep blue-black sky. Higher than the clouds—immeasurably higher — flocks of transparent orbs, shimmering beings arced across the sky, leaving long, streamer-like lines behind them. No words do justice to the beings themselves, which were quite simply different from anything around. They were more advanced. Higher.

In the background silence, suddenly, a sound, huge and booming like a glorious chant, came down from above, and the noble pair wondered if the winged beings were producing it. It seems that the joy of these beings, as they soared along, was such that they had to make this nice noise—that if the joy didn't come out of them this way then they would simply not otherwise be able to contain it. The sound was palpable and almost material, like a rain that one can feel on the skin but that doesn't get you wet.

Seeing and hearing were not separate in this place. In fact all senses known, and beyond the known, exist simultaneously and lively. The noble pair could hear the visual beauty of the silvery bodies of those scintillating beings above, and could see the surging, joyful perfection of what they sang. It seemed that any one could not look at or listen to anything in this world without becoming a part of it—without joining with it in some mysterious way. To illustrate the glorious phenomena more, one couldn't look at anything in that world at all, for the word at itself implies a separation that did not exist there. Everything was distinct, yet everything was also a part of everything else, like the rich and intermingled designs on a Persian carpet . . . or a butterfly's wing.

A warm wind blew through, like the kind that spring up on the most perfect summer days, tossing the leaves of the trees and flowing past like heavenly water. A divine breeze. It changed everything, shifting the world around into an even higher octave, a higher vibration. (Proof of Heaven – Chapter 9)

In the midst of the magnificent, spectacular and magic reality, the Princess whispered to the Prince that she remembered hearing the servants in the King's Palace murmuring the name "Heavens".

Looking beyond the depth of the dark blue skies, the Princess saw with amazement a tiny but a majestically powerful mysterious and constant light source is shining though the abundance of the leafy shades of a huge lote-tree. While the light makes it possible to comprehend itself, it cannot be directly realized but it lights and reflects its shine allover making the whole realm and everything within shining with life and glory. The Princess pointed to it and said to the prince, that this is where the gate, from which she entered the cottage, used to be and is now veiled with splendor.

The peaceful feeling was suddenly interrupted by successive alarm sounds coming out of the displays. Apparently, some Nafs-Pairs in their playful eagerness for exotic exploration, switched the frequency dials on their panels and immediately saw another world and rushed towards it individually, separating their holy pair bondage. All panels have their frequency dials initially set to maximum. Switching the frequency dial by a one-step lower causes entry in a new realm with a lower vibration. The separation of a Nafs-Pair triggers an alarm on each panel of the pair as well as on the screens of the noble pair. Strange unknown feelings went through the noble pair. The princess felt ache in some cell locations of herself.

Watching on their screens what was going on, the now individual Nafs were wondering with excitement in the newly discovered world. They were recording all new scenery, feelings and adventures in their panels and simultaneously transmitting these information to the noble pair who already knew and lively shared their everything because these are quantum worlds.

The new world allows virtual separation and every Nafs could examine the beauty of the individual creatures and objects. So, every Nafs who entered this world became very happy and excited as NEW things are discovered and experienced. They never forgot their partners as they had instantaneous communications and exchanged their information and experiences. They also discovered a new game of hide and seek but usually end up together as Nafs-pairs. All individual and Nafs pairs are now settled in enduring abodes in perfect peace and goodness supreme of perpetual bliss and endure conscious joyful and easy lives wherein no struggle can assail and no weariness can touch.

The new world is now again in harmony and happiness as it is engulfed by the King’s Love and presence. Of course, the Noble pair shared all these new things and breathed freely again. the Princess felt stronger and all her aches disappeared.

That is how the Nafs felt while seemingly floating in the all-harmoneous life sea system of Morality, Consciousness, Love and Peace.

Quotations

1. Book: (Seth-The Unknown Reality-1)

in the reality far beyond space and time(timeless and spaceless reality), today is tomorrow, and present, past, Nothing exists and everything will last.

There is no beginning, there was no end, No depth to fall, no hight to ascend.

There is only this moment, this flicker of light, That illuminates nothing, but oh! so bright!

For we are the spark that flutters in space, consuming an eternity of a moment's grace.

2. Book: (The Secret of Light: Walter Russel)

The foundation of the spiritual universe is stillness; the balanced stillness of the One magnetic Light of God.

Balanced stillness is the Positive Principle of stability and unity. In it there are no negations.

There is no one word in any language to express that quality so we must use many words, all having the same meaning but different connotations. These words are mind, consciousness, love, life, truth, desire, knowledge, power, balance and law.

The Sailing Mirrors of Creation

Remembering who we are and where we came from

A short fictional story about primordial creation of conscious human beings inspired by the divine verse:

"O mankind! Be conscious of your Sustainer [Divine Father], who has created you out of a single [female Divine] soul and created its mate from it, and from the two of them spread countless males and females And remain conscious of The One Mother/Father God, through whom you ask one another, and the ties of kinship. Verily, God is ever an Observer over you."
